

CONVENTION OF ROOSEVELT COUNTY REPUBLICANS

MET AT PORTALES—NOMINATED PART OF TICKET—ENDORSED AND VIEWS FOR DELEGATE.

The republican county convention of Roosevelt county met Saturday afternoon at the court house in Portales and was called to order by W. E. Lindsey, chairman of the county central committee. Albert L. Breeding of Texico was elected temporary chairman and M. J. Logan of Portales, secretary. The temporary organization was made permanent.

The following nominations for county officers were made: for sheriff, L. P. Taffinder; for probate clerk, J. E. White; for assessor, William E. Logan; for commissioner from the second district, Thomas H. Tillinghast.

The county central committee for two years was organized by electing W. E. Lindsey, chairman; H. R. Putman, secretary, and Robert Hicks, treasurer.

The following resolutions were adopted:

We, the republicans of Roosevelt county in convention assembled, endorse and re-affirm our belief in the principles of our party as declared in our last national platform.

We congratulate particularly ourselves as well as the people generally upon the prosperity which has come under republican rule in nation and territory.

We endorse the national administration as conducted by Theodore Roosevelt declaring our utmost confidence in his honesty of purpose and giving our most enthusiastic encouragement to his efforts for the suppression of wrong.

We endorse the administration of the territory of New Mexico and declare our faith in the fairness and ability of our governor, Herbert J. Hagerman.

We declare our appreciation of the labors and accomplishments of our present delegates to congress, William H. Andrews, and pledge to him our support in the matter of a re-nomination and election to succeed himself in that office.

We demand the nomination and election to office in Roosevelt county of such men as will conserve and receive the confidence and approval of every law abiding citizen, and insist that no political tie should entitle any man not thus qualified to receive our support or the support of any patriotic citizen of our county.

JAP CLARK CORRECTS STEER ROPING RECORD

The following letter was received recently by the Denver Post: "I notice an article in your paper of August 18 from Cheyenne, Wyo., saying that Charles B. Irwin made a new world's record in a roping contest by roping and tying a steer in 38 1-5 seconds.

"I will admit that that is very good time, but is nowhere near the record. Clay McGonigle tied a steer in Carlsbad, N. M., two or three years ago, in 24 seconds, and Wilson Carroll roped and tied one in Oklahoma last year in 22 1-2 seconds, and in January, 1903, at a roping contest in El Paso, Texas, a man by the name of Gibson, from Arizona, roped and tied a steer in less than 22 seconds. The ropers were to rope three steers each, and Gibson failed to catch his steer the second day and McGonigle won the prize by tying his first steer in 34 seconds and the second one in 26 seconds, and the last one in 1 minute and 14 seconds. He tied the two first steers in one minute flat.

"Thirty-eight and one-fifth seconds is a very good record, but it will not do to come south with.

"Clay McGonigle pulled the bridle off his horse and roped a steer and tied him in 32 seconds in Carlsbad, N. M., about two years ago.

"Yours truly,
"JAP L. CLARK,
"New Mexico."

JIM CORBETT WRITES ON GANS AND NELSON

FORMER HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION FEARS THAT GANS' MODE OF LIFE WILL TELL ON HIM IN THE RING WHEN HE MEETS "BAT."

(By James J. Corbett.)

The whole country is discussing the Gans-Nelson fight. No fight encounter in several years has stirred up as much interest. Even the heavyweight battles pale into insignificance.

With the contest growing dangerously near to its settlement a discussion of the merits of the two fighters will not be out of place. Both have styles that are peculiar to themselves, and while each has its advantage, brute strength in this case will be a mighty important factor.

At the present time Battling Nelson is for his inches the strongest and sturdiest pugilist in the world. Don't misunderstand me. He is not the best fighter, but for brute strength and tenacity and endurance, he has to take a back seat for no one.

Gans, in his day was an almost ideal fighter. He had a punch, great cleverness and excellent endurance. In all his important fights except the one with McGovern, when there was scarcely any doubt he laid down, the colored lad showed wonderful ring ability. In fact, so good was he most of the time that it was impossible for him to fake without letting the public get wise.

Gans also has one of the greatest records any prize fighter ever boasted of. He has taken part in over 150 important fights, and his climb toward the top was steady and sure, and when he met Ernie for the world's championship he was at his best. I mean the last time. He beat the great Frank in a punch, and all fightdom marveled, for it was only two years before that Ernie put the hooks into Joe in twelve rounds in New York.

Where was Nelson at that time? He was just starting up the ladder; hardly had been heard of, in fact. He was meeting second raters in Milwaukee and Chicago, and his reputation had not traveled much beyond Hegewisch. A match between Gans and the Dane at that time would have been a joke. But what has happened since then?

To start with, Gans has not improved a lick. He has gone back, just how much, is hard to say. Of course, he claims that he is still as good as the day he fought Ernie. This is surely a mistake. Everything in his life points to the opposite. His domestic trouble, his friction with the fight promoters and his age. These may be laughed at by some, but the old fighter will look and listen. They all count. And if there is any of the natural cowardice in the Baltimore man that is usually found in the representatives of his race, and I believe then the life he has led for the past four years will tend to increase it. Reverses take the starch out of an athlete as quick as anything he has to contend with. Nelson, no doubt, realized this when he compelled Joe to make 133. This would be the final nail in the coffin of his defeat from the Dane's standpoint, and I believe no fighter ever entered the ring with more confidence and assurance than Nelson will have on September 3. Gans is afraid of the weight, and I do not blame him, although he was compelled to listen to Nelson's arbitrary demands in the preliminary arrangements for the match.

Let us hope that there is enough personal enmity between the two fighters to make up for the lax conditions which govern the fight. As everybody knows by this time, Nelson and his manager could see nothing that wasn't sure. It took $20,000 win or lose to make them affix their names to a contract, and the guarantee that Gans would make 133 is the ringside. But it is in the comparative fighting strength of the two men that this article is intended to deal. Say Gans is able to do all that he has contracted to do. Say the weight of 133 leaves him in the same condition (an impossibility) that 135 would. Then the Dane will face a fighting machine that excels him in many respects. In handling his mitts Gans has always been cleverer than Nelson, and, in fact, is among the greatest the world has ever seen in this respect. He is rangy and shifty on his feet and a hard man to hit. He has a good guard and the counter that I have every reason to believe. Just what portion of all this advantage will be cut down by his increase in age and the wear and tear on his nervous and physical makeup by the life he has led for the past few years is only in the realm of guess.

Well, if Gans has all this, where does Nelson come in? Let us see. The Dane has been coming for the past two years, or ever since he started, if you care to go back that far. Moderation has been his watchword in everything but progress. He has lived as any sensible man should when not in training, and has constantly increased in strength until today in actual physical powers he is a better man than Gans. And he is always able to retain this advantage. He is one of the coolest propositions the fighting world has ever seen. You can do what you want to him and say what you like in the ring, but Nelson remains the same indomitable bunch of rush and punch. Ten wallopings that in actual fact would be a display of pyrotechnics at once, if Nelson should miss a half dozen blows in succession he keeps right on. It never bothers him. I think he is the superior of any other fighter the world has ever known in this respect. If Gans should miss Nelson several times in succession look out for an ascension.

In his fight with Britt, Nelson kept right on forcing and plowing until his pace really became monotonous to the spectators. He never gave up a second and the blow that rocked his head caused him a great deal of worry than it did the most uninterested spectator in a faraway corner of the pavilion. In other words, punishment makes no more inroad on his emotions than a whiplash on a saw horse.

The Dane's body is almost unharmed. It seems that nature forgot to put the usual amount of sensitiveness in it, and blow after blow, will have little effect on it. Nelson always goes toward his opponent, but his hands are held high and his arms well out, while his head is low and crouched forward. Gans' position is almost the opposite of this and it looks as if it was to the Dane's advantage. Gans will have to do the leading while the Dane keeps boxing in, and the counter attacks comes from the Dane with a little extra force and he sometimes sends in two punches for good measure. There probably never was a fighter who could use his head, arms and body to such wonderful advantage when in close to his opponent. Ask Jimmy Britt whether he would sooner be hit by Nelson than land a swing on the Dane's tow-haired head. Gans may give you the same answer when the fight is over, regardless of how it goes.

Let one blow start Gans down Queer street, and see what wonderful recuperative and reserve power the Dane can call into use. But with all this, Gans in a contest would stop a lot of the Dane's rushes with the blow that he is noted for, and his cleverness would cause the Dane more worry than he has ever been up against before, even conceding he has increased in strength since his last big battle. If the contest resolves itself into a give and take affair with the men undergoing a severe grueling, the conditions of the fight may be remembered, and Goldfields will be in for one of the biggest disappointments in the annals of the fight game. Both men, realizing that the outcome will have no effect on the purse, may shirk the terrific hammering that is sure to be indulged in with these two great fighters at their best, lined up against each other.

With Gans at his best, I mean in the shape he was in when he won the world's championship, he will win. How he will be able to get that way someone else, with a better imagination or insight will have to tell. With Nelson in the shape he ought to be in, and with the fight on the square he should win in less time than it took him to defeat Britt.

CLEANING UP LAS VEGAS BEFORE FAIR

Several thousand people will visit Las Vegas during the fair, says the Optic. Preparations should commence for their coming. Las Vegas should look her best. The streets and alleys should be cleared of all debris and a coat of paint put on where needed. Next to relating what was seen by the visitors on their return to their homes they tell how the city looked. Should the city not look its best, we can expect a knock. It will only require a short while to do this, so let's all put our shoulder to the wheel.

NEW INSTRUCTORS FOR ROSWELL INSTITUTE

Two new members of the faculty of the New Mexico Military Institute have arrived, says the Roswell Record. Capt. Warren S. Barlow, United States army, retired, came in from Fort Bayard, N. M., and is detailed by the war department to remain at Roswell as military instructor at the institute. He was graduated from West Point in 1892, and has been considerable active service in the United States army. Capt. A. De Beaumont, a Lieutenant in the United States army for five years, arrived from the University of Virginia, where he has been for a year, and will take charge of civil engineering and physics at the institute. He served in the Philippines and had two years special work in Japan. Both gentlemen are valuable additions to the institute faculty.

JOHN CAIN SERIOUSLY ILL AT DEMING

Thomas Cain of Idaho Springs, Colo., arrived in Deming last Saturday evening, having been called here by wire to attend his brother, John M. Cain, who is seriously ill, says the Deming Headlight. Mrs. C. M. Harmon of Detroit, Mich., who is Mr. Cain's daughter, also came last Tuesday and is at her father's bedside constantly. Mr. Cain has been a prominent resident of Deming for several years and his friends here are counted by the number of its inhabitants only, and all anxiously await the daily reports as to his condition with a feeling that comes from their utmost souls that he is better and will soon be among us again.

LAS VEGAS LADIES GO SNIPE HUNTING

Mrs. C. H. Bailey and Miss Elsie Hoffman, during their stay at El Porvenir recently had the pleasure of hunting snipe in the night time. One was directed to hold the sack and the other attracted the snipe with a light lantern, but despite their efforts William Curtis Bailey declares he has seen no snipe in the Bailey refrigerator. He likes snipe, too. Some disturbing element interfered with the peaceful possession of their room while they were in the woods snoring the snipe, to top it all off, and Mrs. Bailey, it is said, developed a decided taste for sardines on a trip to Hermit's peak while they were on the outing—Optic.

RECOVERED HER HEALTH BUT NOT HER SPEECH

Victoriana Armijo, who became unconscious about six weeks ago, as she knelt on the floor of her home on Manhattan avenue in Santa Fe, after praying almost continuously for four days, during which time she refused food, has recovered her health and Sunday arose from bed. Strange to say, however, the girl is unable to speak and apparently has lost the entire use of her vocal organs. It is doubtful if she ever speaks again. For nearly a month the girl was in an unconscious condition and her life was despaired of. Her aged mother who is blind kept her alive by administering liquid foods with a spoon. She began to regain her strength a week ago and Sunday was able to walk. Since she collapsed, however, she has never spoken a word.

MAY HAVE TO FACE CHARGE OF MURDER

A dispatch from Pueblo, says: Frank Tambling, a representative of a Denver employment agent, may be called upon to face the charge of murdering a teamster at La Cebolla, N. M., some time ago. Tambling brought a number of men to Pueblo last week to go to work in the southern part of the state. The jobs failed to materialize and he was arrested and taken to Denver. It is claimed that a pay check owned by the missing and supposedly murdered teamster was cashed in Pueblo by Tambling at the store of the McCord, Chapman & Greer Mercantile company. The Denver police have been asked to hold Tambling for the Pueblo officials and it is understood the New Mexico authorities are also after him.

AMERICANS WORK A SMOOTH GRAFT

Two American adventurers are alleged to have worked a smooth graft at Llanos de Oro, Mexico recently. Entering the camp they reported having seen a number of Yaqui Indians in the vicinity. When the story had time to circulate and some of the people at the camp had reached the proper stage of apprehension, the two strangers offered their services as guards and scouts, to keep a sharp lookout for the Indians. The Nogalls Gals says they were employed and outfitted by the residents of the camp in a spirit of strutting about the place armed to the teeth. They then broached the plan of securing horses, so they could ride about the hills and see that the prowling reds did not get too near the camp. For the purpose of purchasing good horses and outfitting it is stated, General Manager Mackay advanced $1,000. The men left the camp to get the horses and, so far as the residents of Llanos de Oro can learn, are still looking for suitable animals.
